Stanford University School of Medicine
Department of Pediatrics, Division of Pediatric Infectious Diseases
Lucile Packard Children’s Hospital at Stanford

The Division of Infectious Diseases in the Department of Pediatrics at Stanford University School of Medicine is recruiting an academic pediatric infectious diseases faculty member. The appointment is 100% (full time). The position is open at the Assistant/Associate/Full Professor rank (commensurate with qualification and experience) in the Clinician Educator line. (https://med.stanford.edu/academicaffairshandbook/chapter-3/criteria.html). The major criterion for appointment in the Clinician Educator line is excellence in clinical care and clinical teaching.

Candidates will be expected to participate in clinical care, teaching of medical students, residents and fellows, and research or other scholarly activities of the Department of Pediatrics and serve on certain departmental committees. The candidates will be expected to provide clinical service at Lucile Packard Children’s Hospital at Stanford (LPCH) and participating regional hospitals. The position will have an administrative component based on the needs of the division and hospital support. The successful candidate must have the following experience/qualifications:

- M.D. or D.O.
- Successful completion of an approved pediatric residency training program
- Fellowship in Pediatric Infectious Diseases
- Board certification/eligibility in Pediatrics and Pediatric Infectious Diseases
- Eligibility for a California Medical License
- Proven excellence in clinical care, education, and administrative experience is required.
- The experience or ability to foster collegiality and work collaboratively in a diverse environment.

Training and/or experience in antimicrobial stewardship and/or infection prevention and control is strongly preferred.

For full consideration applications should be received by September 30, 2020; however the position will remain open until filled. Completed applications include CV, Cover Letter, Statement of Teaching and Statement of Contributions to Diversity. Candidates should submit their applications electronically to Linda Lambert at llambert@stanford.edu.
